

Announcing Shalom Baby!

It is always a pleasure to welcome new people to St. Paul's Jewish community, but a baby is a special blessing. That is why Jewish Family Service of St. Paul and PJ Library, a program locally supported by the Jewish Federation of Greater St. Paul, are partnering to launch Shalom Baby in St. Paul.

Shalom Baby is a successful national program that welcomes families to the community by linking those with babies by birth or adoption to community resources. Shalom Baby will provide an avenue to help new parents identify synagogues, agencies and organizations that will provide support and help them build Jewish connections during this special time in their lives.

All identified families will receive a gift basket and a home visit by Marni Tselos, PJ Library coordinator or Jodi Saltzman, the Family Life Education Program coordinator with Jewish Family Service of St. Paul. The basket includes gift items for the baby and resource information provided by local organizations and synagogues.

Anyone who is welcoming a new addition to the family or knows someone who is, can contact Jodi Saltzman at 651-313-6623 or jsaltzman@jfssp.org or Marni Tselos at 651-695-3195 or mtselos@stpaulfed.org.
